

THURSDAY, JANUARY 15, 1835.

Washington, Saturday, January 10.

The Senate did not sit today, but the House of Representatives, Mr. Polk, chairman of the committee of Ways and Means, reported a bill to suspend conditionally the receipt of the bills and notes of the Bank of the U. States and its branches, in payment of debts to the U. States.

The bill provides, "That from and after the passage of this act the bills or notes of the Bank of the U. S. made payable, or which shall have become payable, on demand, shall not be receivable in any payment to the U. S. Provided, That if said Bank shall pay into the Treasury the full amount of dividends of profits on the capital stock of said Bank, owned by the U. S., heretofore withheld from the Treasury by said Bank, it shall upon such payment into the Treasury, be the duty of the Secretary of the Treasury to authorize the receipt of such bills or notes in payment to the United States, for a period extending to the expiration of the charter of said Bank on the 3d March of 1836."

This important bill was read twice and committed to a committee of the whole on the state of the Union, and will be called up in about ten days.

Mr. Polk also stated that he was instructed by the Committee of Ways and Means to give notice that at as early a day as was practicable, a motion would be made to take up the several bills relating to the Bank of the U. States, and the regulation of the deposits in the state banks. That the Committee had hitherto abstained from pressing the consideration of the bills referred to, from a disinclination to interfere with the other necessary business of the House. He repeated that the bills would be called up at the earliest possible period.

A report from the Secretary of the Treasury shewing the comparative rate of exchange as charged by the U. Bank and its branches and the state banks, was also laid before the house by the Speaker. Of this paper ten thousand extra copies were ordered to be printed.

The bill making compensation to Commodore Hull for services rendered as Navy agent at this place, during the time he was commandant of the yard, came up again for consideration. Mr. Binney spoke at some length in support of the bill, and with his usual ability, not forgetting those nice metaphysical distinctions, and legal sophistry, for which he was so distinguished in his speech upon the deposit question last session. But the house could not be proselyted to his opinions, and they negatived the bill by the decisive majority of, yeas 127, nays 61.

The letter from our Washington Correspondent, under date of Jan. 9, published yesterday morning, was printed before we read it—had we perused it, as we generally do, before it went into the compositor's hands, we certainly should have erased the charges of "cowardice," and of being a "professed duellist," which it alleged against Gen. Duff Green. Although our political feelings and opinions are in direct opposition to those entertained by Gen. Green, we cannot, on that account, consent to do wrong to his private character. None who know Gen. Green will doubt his personal courage, and we have always understood that he was restrained by his religious sentiments from the practice of duelling.

Banks and Banking.—A dislike to large monied incorporations, and monopolies of all kinds, is becoming more and more prevalent in this community. Among the institutions that fall under these classes, and which are commanding at this time a full share of public attention, are Banks.

The Banking institutions of this State are probably on as good a footing, both as relates to safety and public utility, as in any State of the Union; and the gentlemen who manage them are, as a whole, undoubtedly as high-minded, honest and capable, as those in the direction of any similar institutions anywhere else. The Banks, too, are so fastened upon us by legal enactments, so banded together by the ties of private interests, and so associated with the policy and habits of the State, that it would be both impracticable and inexpedient to attempt their suppression at once. It is, however, important that the people become better informed respecting the actual influence of these institutions upon their industry, and their general welfare, than they are at present.

Banking, according to the general impression, create capital, and are hence thought to be useful in promoting trade and industry. This, however, is a mistake. Banks create no capital—they simply concentrate that which already exists. That wealth which constitutes the capital of a bank, must exist before the organization of the bank. Different individuals own it, and put it together to form the capital of a banking copartnership, called in law a bank. The capital of the bank is formed, then, not by creating new capital, but by concentrating, from the hands of individuals, existing wealth. The bank, from its first organization, continues the process of concentrating, by borrowing with or without paying interest. The whole means which a bank uses, is its original stock capital—deposits with or without interest, and its circulation. The deposits are capital, which, like its stock capital, exist before being placed in the keeping of the bank—they are capital concentrated, not created by the bank. Its circulation, too, is not capital, but the means by which it draws capital to its vaults and within its control. The promissory notes which the bank issues, and which pass for money, have no intrinsic value, in themselves. The person who receives those notes in payment for his labor, his goods, or his produce, and not the bank, furnishes the capital, which they represent. The commodity sold, and not the bank note, is the capital. But the bank which issues the note, and not the man who furnishes the commodity, draws interest on, and derives the profits from, the capital furnished.

Banks, then, it is quite evident, create no capital, but simply accumulate and control that which already exists. From this incontrovertible position, let us commence a survey of the influence of banks upon the interests of the public. The first objection against them that we propose to examine, is, the large amount which they absorb in the expenses of carrying them on, from the productive industry of the country. We have shown that banks create no capital, the business of banking being a non-productive employment. Banks are not producers—and what they accumulate is absorbed, and must always be absorbed, from productive labor—it can come from no other source. There are upwards of one hundred banks in this State, wielding a nominal capital of rising twenty-nine millions of dollars. The expense of carrying on these banks, in salaries and other contingent outlays, cannot fall short of half a million of dollars yearly. This vast sum is annually abstracted from the earnings of those who labor in productive employments. And this bears but a small proportion to the amount abstracted from the earnings of labor by those who use this accumulated capital, the favored borrowers of the banks, and who, in consequence of these facilities, monopolize, in a larger or smaller market, such articles as will pay them a profit. All these gains will be found, when traced to their source, to come from the productive labor of the community—that being the source of all value, they can come from none other. The beautiful edifice, which the Suffolk Bank in this city has recently erected in State street, at a cost little, if any, less than one hundred thousand dollars, is a part, and a part only, of the fruits of the tribute which it has levied upon the country banks. These banks, in turn, have levied their respective quotas of this tribute upon their customers, who, in turn again, have assessed it upon another class, the producers. We cannot trace all the windings of these complicated operations, but we know that the productive labor furnishes the means, and that the rich stockholders of the Suffolk Bank get them. And similar results are seen in the operations of all other banks.

The circulation and deposits of the banks in this State, not drawing interest, according to the last returns, were upwards of ten millions of dollars more than the specie in their vaults. Ten millions, at 6 per cent. per annum, give six hundred thousand dollars a year, which the banks derive from this process of concentrating wealth.

The banks maintain a corps of salaried officers, who, thus, as has been shown, are maintained in a business that creates no wealth—yet they live upon the public, at an expense of half a million of dollars yearly—a sum equal to the expenses of all the State Governments of New England, Massachusetts excepted: but the people who pay them, have no voice in their selection, nor in fixing their salaries. Many of these men are the most eager and busy in getting up new, and fastening old monopolies and burdens upon the public. The Legislature would do a good act if they were to require these corporations to make a report every year in October, to be laid before the next Legislature, giving the names of all their salaried officers, with the sums paid to each, and also an account of all the expenses of each bank for the year previous. With this information before them, the people could be better able to propose future remedies for existing evils, which are great and oppressive. We hope this, or some similar measure, may be introduced into the Legislature this winter. This is a matter of vital interest to the producing classes, and a question entirely disconnected with the party politics of the day. It is a measure that may lead to bettering the condition of the farmer, mechanic and laborer, and it is for them to decide upon its adoption.

Governor's Message.—Gov. Davis's Message to the Legislature was delivered on Tuesday. Its extreme length—it fills a whole page of the Daily Advertiser—renders it impracticable for us to republish it entire.

The following extracts contain its most important points. After a number of introductory remarks, His Excellency proceeds to consider the Finances of the State, which he says claim the first consideration:—

The funds have been derived as follows during the past year:

Balance in the Treasury on the first of January last	$52,873 34
On sales at Auction,	41,655 35
Tax on Banks,	294,452 10
Interest on the funds received from the United States in part for military services and disbursements during the late war,	14,050 00
Proceeds of the sales of Public Lands,	50,253 55
All other sources,	9,556 96
Total	$462,341 39

The expenditures during the same period have been as follows:

For the support of Government, other than the pay of Councillors, Senators and Representatives,	67,591 64
For the pay of Councillors, Senators and Representatives,	105,813 00
For the support of Paupers, embracing some payments to Sheriffs, Coroners, &c.,	66,065 96
For balances due to the several Counties,	37,819 30
For Adjutant General and Quartermaster General's Department,	2,500 00
For Agricultural Societies, Asylums for deaf, dumb and blind persons, for Hospitals and Worcester and Rainsford Island, pensions and gratuities to soldiers,	42,535 26
For public printing, interest on loans, survey of the State, repairs of the State House, and many other disbursements made under laws and resolves,	40,755 25
Balance in the Treasury January 1st, including $10,268 60, derived from the Warren Bridge, and not available,	96,429 49
Total	$459,009 90

With the exception of some small disbursements, the amount of which is not before me, the above presents an accurate statement of the financial operations during the last year.

By analyzing the details as exhibited by the Treasurer, it will appear that one hundred and one thousand dollars have been applied, almost exclusively, to charitable purposes: that $105,813 were absorbed in paying the Councillors, Senators and Representatives; and that it has required about $80,000 to sustain the Judicial Tribunals and a due administration of criminal law. 16,000 acres of the public lands, producing over $25,000 have been sold during the year; the demand has diminished of late. A brief allusion is made to the North Eastern boundary question, which is still open.

By an abstract showing the condition of the Banks on the first Saturday of May last, it appears that the capital stock paid in, was $29,409,450, which has been somewhat increased since. The bills in circulation amounted to $2,650,146. Gold and Silver on hand, to $1,160,296.

A return under the law of last Session, has been made for the first time, of the condition of the Institutions for Savings, by which it appears that, twenty-two corporations of this description are in successful operation—that the number of depositors is 24,256—the amount deposited $3,407,773 90. The amount of dividends for the year $138,576 53, and the whole expense of conducting the establishments $10,96 67 during the same time.

The State Prison at Charlestown is in a condition that will afford great satisfaction to the public. His Excellency gives a very gratifying account of it.

The State Lunatic Hospital at Worcester, during the past year has been in successful operation, and most if not all the benefits anticipated have been realized from this disinterested public charity.

The claim of the State upon the United States for military services and disbursements during the late war next claims the attention of His Excellency. An elaborate history of it is given. About one third of the speech relates to this subject.

The Militia is the next subject touched upon. "No one who loves the Commonwealth (says His Excellency) who cherishes a regard for the constitution, who desires protection from the laws, and the blessings of equality which they are designed to establish, who joys in the felicity of the past, or casts his hopes forward upon the continuance of our singular happiness as a free people, can fail to place a high estimate upon a well organized Militia—to honor its usefulness, and to uphold it with patriotic ardor, as the strong arm which in extremities must save our peaceful institutions from the rude assaults of violence."

Education and some other subjects next engage the attention of Governor Davis, who says: "The culture of the human mind ever has been, and I trust will continue to be a matter of the most anxious solicitude with the people of this Commonwealth, for industry, purified by good morals, and guided by knowledge, is the great leading element of our prosperity."

The mode of electing Representatives is referred to. His Excellency says, that large Legislative bodies do not afford a favorable theatre for the successful action of corruption, intrigue or bribery. There is, however, a reasonable limit, and the number may be too large.—An opinion has long been entertained by many, probably a majority of the citizens, that our constitutional number may be diminished without detriment to the public interests, and the question ought to be met by promptly submitting it for the action of the people.

A considerable part of the speech is devoted to the subject of the surveys of the Commonwealth, and to a reform in the poor laws of the State.

Miss Lane's Benefit.—Considerable interest is felt to witness the performance of this young and very promising actress, in the character of Helen—her remarkable precocity has won for her many friends, and this evening they will have an opportunity to gratify themselves and manifest their approbation of an estimable young lady by visiting the Warren, where the Hunchback is always well played.

Our friend Porter has got hold of the N. Y. Spirit of the Times again, and in truth it appears like old Times once more. It is the very thing it pretends to be—"The Spirit of the Times."

The Sixth Annual Ball for the Benefit of the New York Fire Department Fund will take place at the Park Theatre, on Monday evening, the 26th inst.

The Eighth of January was celebrated in splendid style at Portland. The Hon. JOHN ANDERSON presided at the table.

Four or five cases of Small Pox have occurred at Wakefield, N. H. Precautions have been taken to prevent its spread.

The Anniversary of the Battle of New Orleans, and the Payment of the National Debt.—This triumphant day was most enthusiastically celebrated. The Vice President and the Democratic members of the Senate—the Speaker of the House and the Republicans of the body—and all the members of the President's Cabinet, were present. There were, besides, a great number of citizens from various quarters of the Union, who joined in the festivity. We believe such an interesting, impressive, and splendid celebration, was never before witnessed in this city. We shall not, however, anticipate the account of the proceedings, which will doubtless be laid before the public by the Committee of Arrangements.—Wash. Globe.

Rogue Caught.—We learn from the Newark Advertiser, that William Platt, Esquire, a Justice of the Peace, implicated in the piracy at Barnegat Inlet has been apprehended, and has given bonds to the amount of $4000, for his appearance at Court. Owing to detentions, the officers did not enter the village until after daylight, when the alarm being given, the Justice made his escape into the woods, but was pursued, his tracks in the snow being visible, and he was finally brought to bay in a pine barren, after a pursuit of about three miles.—Merc.

Miss Along Moy is about to quit this city for the South, notwithstanding the very considerable crowds who continue to be attracted by her little feet. An absurd cruelty of fashion by the way, which we understand she says, does not appear to her at all more strange than some of the fashions she notices in the ladies who visit her.—N. Y. Jour. Com.

The Packets for Havre and Liverpool were not able to get to sea yesterday, on account of the ice. The news of the Report of the Senate's Committee on our relations with France, will of course go out by these Packets.—Ibid.

Charles Wade, a desperate fellow, who had escaped from Prison at Columbus, Ohio, was shot dead by a party who were in pursuit of him. He was armed, and had discharged one pistol, and was in the act of firing another, when killed.

Town Meeting.—An adjourned town meeting was holden yesterday, to take into consideration the expediency of a union of the towns of Newbury and Newburyport. After some discussion, the question was taken, and decided in the negative.

The Vice Chancellor has refused to grant an injunction against the Hicksites, who, in the division of opinion, retain possession of the church property. The refusal is granted on the ground that the property will not be injured or destroyed.—N. Y. Star.

Another of the granite pillars for the Court House arrived in the city yesterday noon, drawn by 66 yoke of oxen and 12 horses. It is estimated to weigh 58 tons.—Ibid.

Matthew Carey presided at a recent meeting in Philadelphia, to devise means of relieving the poor, and 400 dollars were subscribed, as a commencement of the benevolent work.

Suicide.—An elderly lady put an end to her existence on Sunday last, by jumping into a mill-pond, near Mt. Holly, N. J. She was temporarily insane.

A recent meeting of the butchers of R—, a England, one of them made the following creditable and pathetic appeal on the advantages of railroads:

"Among other advantages," said he, "look at that which affects the pigs brought to market! They will be saved the fatigues of their journey, poor things! They will not, as now, run down all their flesh, poor things! They will not, as now, run down all their taste and flavor, poor things!" (Loud cheers.)

POLICE COURT.

Horrible Butchery!—The world is all ajar—crimes accumulate with unexampled rapidity, and astonish with their portentous magnitude and atrocity; and right, rapine, and deeds of blood are rife in our land. Even our own peaceful city was, on Sunday night, the theatre of a dreadful domestic tragedy, unrivalled and unparalleled, by the darkest dramatic horror ever enacted on the scenic stage. Though some pains had been taken to preserve secrecy in relation to the affair, from motives of policy, its occurrence was generally suspected yesterday forenoon; and at an early hour a large concourse of citizens repaired to the court house, to ascertain the facts, and emissaries from evening and morning journals were on the alert, to glean a skeleton of the facts for their respective readers. So great was the desire to get at the truth of the astounding rumor, that a direct, but unsuccessful application was made to a supposed paragraphist, present in court, to furnish an evening editor with correct information "dressed up in his peculiar and happy style."

It appears that a couple of young male orphans kept a bachelor's hall in a lone dwelling in George street, where they were daily visited by, and often experienced the liberal bounty of an individual, who took a lively interest in their welfare. They had not quite "reached man's estate;" and now, alas! one of them never can—even, though before, he might have hoped to have equalled or surpassed many who wear the human form—for Rolla truly says, all are not men that wear that form—and, therefore, the form, by the soundest deduction of logic, is not a necessary attribute of manhood. On Sunday evening, their philanthropic guardian (whether duly so appointed by a Judge of Probate, does not appear) paid them his usual periodical visit, and viewed with looks of fond complacency their vigorous appetites, contented condition, and gradually developing beauties. He remained with them, caressing and patting them on their heads and cheeks, till they manifested indications that the drowsy god of sleep oppressed their eyelids, when, with a warm wish that they might "steep their senses in forgetfulness," he left them affectionately extended together in the warmest corner of their humble cottage, little dreaming what a single night might bring forth, or destroy. The next morning, with the ever watchful vigilance of genuine benevolence, he made a call upon his young wards, with his morning offering, expecting to be welcomed with their usual and peculiarly sonorous salute, the thrill, melodious tones of which, though often attempted, have never been successfully imitated by any of our musicians. But all was silence—solemn and ominous; and, with a feeling of mysterious awe and apprehension, he ventured to raise the latch of the tenement, and was about to enter, when he shrunk back aghast at the frightful spectacle of clotted gore, which deeply encrusted the ground floor of the apartment. Gathering desperate courage from his frantic fear, he rushed into the bloody scene in quest of the cause of the revolting sight that met his astonished vision. The only object that met his glance was the sleeping form of one of the objects of his tender solicitude, quietly reposing in the very attitude in which he left him on the preceding evening. That a dreadful deed had been consummated within the narrow precincts of their abode, the blood upon the floor and the wooden walls, left no traces of doubt upon his mind, but the smile of innocence that played over the countenance of the unconscious slumberer before him, united with the absence of his beloved brother, led him at once to acquit him of all participation in the dreadful crime.

The worthy guardian, unwilling to put the perpetrators of the deed on their guard by creating an alarm, passed the forenoon in a species of moody melancholy madness till dinner time, when he was informed that a suspicious looking colored woman, in George street, was seen stealthily wiping large spots of fresh blood from her door step, by candle light in the morning. This fresh corroborating and tragical circumstance, formed a clue for the detection of the awful mystery, and after the harrowed feelings aroused by the appalling fact had in some degree subsided, he called upon a constable to accompany him to the suspected haunt, to which they instantly repaired, in sorrow and trepidation. They entered the house and forced themselves into an upper back chamber, in which they discovered the corpse savagely mangled and crushed into a hogshead. The officer, who united in himself the combined and co-equivalent capacities of constable, coroner, and surgeon, immediately resolved himself into a coroner's inquest, and proceeded in due form to examine the body, and all the circumstances connected with the shocking transaction. In one corner of the room was found a large axe, the head and handle of which was dyed with blood, and in horrible confirmation of the bloody work in which it had been employed, there was a deep indentation on the head of the deceased, corresponding exactly in form and size with the head of the blood-stained axe. Upon further investigation of the neck and chest, it was found that the carotid artery had been severed by some sharp instrument, which traversed the chest diagonally, till it was arrested by the lower extremity of the left shoulder blade, in the fleshy muscular envelopment of which it made a deep incision, the existence of which was scientifically indicated by the exhibition of a large quantity of extravasated blood. The constable, in his medical capacity, was not prepared to give a decided opinion, whether the death was produced by the fracture in the skull; the elision in the carotid artery; the laceration in the inner side of the shoulder, or by the admission of common atmospheric air into the dissevered veins, which prevented a return of the blood to the heart; he rather inclined to the opinion, that death ensued from the combined effects of all four causes.

To cap the climax, cannibalism was about to be added to the catalogue of crimes committed on the defunct, a part of whose flesh, cut in the similitude of a steak, was found hissing and broiling in a frying pan, on the fire.

The occupants of the chamber—John William Barker and Rebecca Beck—were arrested, and have been committed for trial, before a competent tribunal.

Though the deceased cannot be said to have "died a natural death," yet it was very natural that no animated being could live long under such treatment—no, not even a PIG.

The liabilities of the Bank of England, on the first of October, were 32,428,000.—and the assets were 34,963,000—leaving a surplus of two and a half millions.

MASSACHUSETTS LEGISLATURE.

In House of Representatives, Wednesday, Jan. 14.—The petition of the town of Princeton, for the reduction of the House of Representatives; it was moved that this petition be referred to a select committee. Mr. Lee remarked that the Governor had in his message recommended a revision of the Constitution so as to provide for the proposed reduction, and he moved that the same be referred to a large committee; laid on the table.

Ordered, on motion of Mr. Pierce, that the certificates of members already received and those that may be received hereafter, be referred to the Committee on Elections. On motion of Mr. Lincoln, the order presented yesterday by Mr. Pierce was taken up. Mr. Keyes moved that that part of the order which related to the time of receiving evidence relative to contested elections be stricken out; and that the order be so amended as to read "That the Committee proceed immediately to the performance of the duty assigned to them."

Mr. Chapman thought it best to limit the time for receiving evidence. It was not right or proper, that a gentleman should come and sit five or six weeks in the House and then be informed by the Committee, that he had no right there; he was willing to allow a reasonable time in which remonstrances and other evidence might be produced.

Mr. Bigelow wished it was in the power of the House to control the time, but should be sorry to say that the people whose servants all the members were, should not after a particular time lay their petitions before the House, even should they come in at the last day of the session.

Mr. Baylies wished that something might be done, but he did not see how it could be done; Instances of long delay on the subject had occurred in the House. He once knew an instance where a member whose right to a seat was contested, came here and staid through two whole sessions, during which two laws were passed by a single vote, and he was not certain but the whole proceedings of those sessions might be annulled. He considered the subject worthy of the serious consideration of the House. Referred to a committee of Messrs. Baylies, Prince and Bigelow.

Petition of Joseph W. Revere, for authority to extend North Battery wharf in Boston, with several others, were referred to appropriate committees.

Mr. Thayer, from the committee of the last session, to whom was referred the petition of Henry Curtis, and others, presented a report. Referred to the Committee on Roads and Bridges, and ordered to be printed.

The Secretary presented a communication from the Governor, accompanied by the documents referred to in his message of yesterday.

On motion of Mr. Rantoul, ordered that Messrs Rantoul, Ruggles and Rice of Boston be a committee to consider the expediency of repealing all laws and parts of laws of the Commonwealth which provide in any case for the infliction of the punishment of death.

On motion of Mr. Baylies, the message of the Governor, with the accompanying documents, were taken up, and the different subjects therein contained, severally referred to appropriate committees.

A long and animated discussion arose as to the reference of so much of the message as relates to the pauper laws and to the emigration of foreigners into the Commonwealth. It was finally referred to a committee of one member from each county. Adj.

In Senate.—The several subjects embraced in the message of his Excellency the Governor, were referred to the standing committees, and the whole sent down for concurrence.

No other business of public interest was transacted in the Senate this morning.—Merc.

MACOMBER, WELCH & CO'S

GRAND ZOOLOGICAL EXHIBITION

is now open at No 45 Union, near Hanover street.

This establishment has lately received from Southern exhibitors, and from India, many valuable additions; and it now embraces the most extensive collection of Beasts and Birds in America.

The Hall is enlarged and commodiously fitted up, having extensive Galleries, with seats, elevated so as to preclude all possible danger, and to afford ample room for more than one thousand spectators, to witness the various performances of the Animals.

The Proprietors flatter themselves, that with this extensive arrangement, together with the strict discipline observed in the exhibition, their efforts will not be unavailing.

Hours of exhibition from 10 o'clock in the morning until 9 in the evening. Performances to take place at 11 A. M. half past 3 P. M. and at 7 and 8 in the evening. Time of feeding half past 9.

BOOKS!—The undersigned having made use of Mr Moses H. MARSHALL'S Patent Book BLOCKS, hereby inform them as a more safe and powerful article than any of the kind in common use. The book is supported at both ends by broad plates, thereby securing the sheets, and is proved safe in the heavy work of the quatrines in Gloucester, where the common iron and composition castings have broken in great numbers. He has furnished with several, and they have given us great satisfaction.

Jan 1 EBEN'R KENFIELD.

PROSPERITY.—Vol. VIII.—In reviewing the success of our work for the seven years it has been issued, we have certainly much reason to be gratified. Never till the present time have we had cause to complain. But the depression of business last winter, just at the season when we obtained most of our subscribers, had a very injurious effect—we lost about five hundred names.

The new year brings the responsibility of beginning a new volume. The Editor has become part proprietor of the work, and it is indispensable that a large addition to our subscription be obtained, to enable us to sustain the Magazine, and make such improvements as the importance of the objects require.

Every lady and every gentleman, who take an interest in the cause of female education, endeavor to send us one subscriber. We ask these favors confidently. Ours is the only periodical in the republic, devoted solely to the mental, moral, and religious improvement of Woman. We have the assistance of many of our best female writers. We offer a field where female genius may find scope—where the female mind may engage in its appropriate work, that of benefitting the Female ence—that it wido good. Its influence is directed to promote social refinement, domestic virtues, and humble piety. It is not for the idle, the dissipated, the unprincipled, or the uneducated, unless intelligent ladies devote themselves to the work of education, and implant deeply the principles of our holy religion in the heart of the young, neither Christianity nor Freedom can be maintained in our country. The character of our Magazine is, however, well known. We need only add that there have made arrangements by which we hope its interest and usefulness will be increased. We only wish for an increase of subscribers—this will animate our exertions as well as

The January number will be enlarged, and contain 60 pages instead of 48, as heretofore.

Two elegant engravings will be given in the course of the year.

The subscription price is $3.00 per annum, payable on delivery of the very of the third number.

Communications intended for the Magazine may be directed to the Editor—those on business to the Publisher.
